FIRST THINGS FIRST

Ulysses S. Taxpayer and his missus have looked over the new tax proposals. They have been advised that much depends on what they think. Congressmen, for instance, have pointed out that Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau can propose, but that they will do the legislating. It is their job to get the feathers off the goose, and they are answerable to the people, not to Mr. Morgenthau.

Any congressman who lays his good ear to the ground these days is likely to find out that federal finance has quit being something done with mirrors and slide rules and begun to be something done with hard-earned money invested directly in Defense Stamps and Bonds and paid directly in the form of taxes. This was the theory of broadening the government investment and taxation bases—to make more citizens conscious of financial participation. The theory is working.

Ulysses Taxpayer and his missus are getting as conscious of the overwhelming expense of participating in the American way as they would be of a boif on their nose—and as touchy. By due processes of reasoning, they are reaching certain conclusions. Their conclusions are, by grace of the representative process of government, duly honored as public opinion. In the United States, public opinion still calls the turn in the conduct of public affairs.

What that means in terms of congressional action is that congressmen who don't discover ways and means to restructure taxpayers about the way their money is being handled are going to be looking for work in the near future. More specifically, it means that the people are getting touchy about the money their government is spending; it's not somebody else's money now, but theirs. When taxes get higher, as they must, they will be twice and maybe four times as touchy. This is what the theorists said would happen, and they were right. You can testify to that yourself, dear reader.

You are willing to put up whatever it takes to keep the mechanized Huns and Samurai from winning the war, but nothing extra for basket weaving, folk dancing, bird walks, cocktail parties, swivel chair parasites, social reforming and systematized pap-sucking. You want first things to be put first. When you pay through the nose for a medium tank, a heavy bomber and an anti-aircraft gun, you don't want the money to get sidetracked for a new postoffice at Marmaduke Junction, or blue velvet hangings in a bureaucratic bathroom. After the war's over and there's nothing more important to worry about than whether to crack return to the More Abundant Life with a whoop and a holler. Until then, first things first.

New Jersey Taxpayers association, according to a broadside just fired at all members of congress, thinks there should be a director of priorities over government spending—to search out and abolish spending of every kind that has no place in this time of emergency. The association believes the "nation must have this watchdog over public expenditures so that waste and extravagance for non-essentials will not sabotage the war program."

All in favor might signify by making a loud noise in the direction of their representative and senators in Washington, D. C. Considerable thought has been nothing to do. They might keep themselves profitably employed for the next few years trying to save a billion here and there, to go and come on when the war's over.

PUBLIC POLICY ON FRANCE

British bombing of the Paris area, producing an immediate blast from Vichy, confirms the prevailing impression that Germans have been using France not wisely but too well. It obviously must now be Britain's conviction that there is more to gain than lose by carrying the war into the midst of their defeated ally's country.

In the United States, betting odds for a long time have favored the chance that this government's hope of appeasing the French would fizzle. After Dec. 7, the odds in favor doubled. It may still make sense to the state department that what amounts to a puppet government will not follow the will of the puppeteers, but it never has made sense to an ordinary citizen. Many of them who were able to believe in the possibility of buying off Japan never have been able to see anything but a rude awakening forthcoming from France.

If it were possible for the public to determine what should be done, all French islands in this hemisphere and everything belonging to France everywhere else would be put under control immediately on the assumption that Germany ultimately will use it in the attempt to suppress everything that France stood for in the pre-war family of nations.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, March 7

ACCORDING to the lunar transits this should be a most propitious day for attaining lofty objectives, with promotion, favors, honors and preferment from employers, superiors and those in high places. But this aim should be pursued by open and above board tactics rather than by indulging a proclivity to be clever, crafty or resorting to expediency while overlooking the sound element of principle.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for favors, preferment, promotion and honors, with many tokens of appreciation from employers, superiors and those in high standing; but by strict regard for integrity and honor and not indulging a proclivity to be sharp, cunning and expedient. With high principle and purpose there should be much accomplished, in both social and business relations. Be careful with writings and alert to sharp practice.

A child born on this day should have much ambition to attain the good graces of those in high places, and will be eminently successful if it will refrain from unethical and too clever methods or trickiness.

WHY R. A. F. RAIDED FRANCE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Wide World War Analyst

One's first impulse is to avoid discussing the necessity of the British bombing of the industrial suburbs of Paris with heavy loss of civilian life, but such vital issues are involved that it is best to face the matter squarely.

Britain undoubtedly was impelled by several reasons to undertake this unenviable task. I believe we find the basic reason in the grim fact that this world conflict is "total war,"—battle to a bloody finish.

"Total war" is a phrase which slips easily from thoughtless tongues. It has come to have so little meaning that we are shocked and shaken when we see it terribly exemplified—when we have thrust upon us the concrete evidence that this is indeed a "life or death struggle."

In judging whether such an extreme measure is right or wrong, we must force ourselves to understand that, if this war runs on indefinitely, half of humanity may perish through violence and disease and starvation. And part of what is left may find itself under the iron heel of bondage, as does unhappy France right now.

The British cabinet to my mind started from the premise that this is stark total war, with the lives not only of countless millions but of many great nations involved. Most certainly the council had before it the urgent fact that the spring is almost here, and with it will come what may be the final Hitlerian effort to crush the Allies.

We are almost face to face with the crisis which likely will show where the ultimate victory will lie. Both sides are racing to reach the highest pitch of armament before the battle begins, and every hour is priceless.

The war cabinet also had before it reports showing that the huge Renault factory outside Paris has been turning out a vast and steady stream of tanks and airplane engines for the Germans to use in their spring offensive. Other neighboring plants have been producing war supplies for the Nazi boss.

One can understand, then, why the British war council decided those factories must be wiped out. It was an unenviable task, and must have been undertaken with the prayer that the French people would understand.

EMERGENCY SPURS FIRST AID TRAINING

Great Increase In Number of Applications Is Seen

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE TRAINING of laymen in first aid was begun by the American Red Cross in 1919 and in the present emergency a great increase in the number of applicants for training will occur.

"First aid is the immediate and temporary care given by trained persons in case of accidents before the physician takes charge is the definition given by the American Red Cross manual.

In the United States each day, without the addition of war or bombing and plague outbreaks, there are 24,000 accidents. If every one of these were attended by a physician from the beginning, about one out of seven physicians would administer first aid every day. This, of course, is quite impossible for many reasons and the great majority of accident victims must receive their first aid care from a layman until the services of a physician can be obtained.

As a matter of fact, this is probably a good thing, provided the layman has had a Red Cross course in first aid, because very often it is possible that a layman can teach

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. F.—"Is baking soda, taken internally for colds, dangerous? Is a five-grain Bicarbonate of Soda pill taken three times a day during a cold too much and dangerous? Can soda cause cancer?"

Answer: There is no danger in the use of bicarbonate of soda in the amount you specify. However I do not believe this will cure a cold. Soda will not cause cancer.

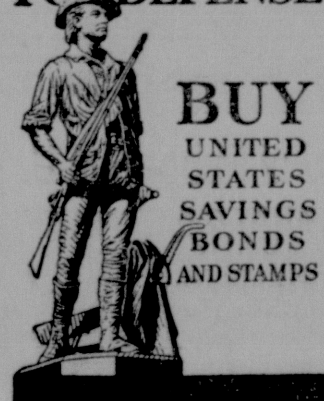

R. P. H.—"Is there any vitamin which is beneficial to the nerves? The particular case is blinking eyes. The eyesight is apparently all right but the lids frequently blink in a very serious manner."

Answer: This description sounds like a nervous condition to me, pure and simple, and I do not believe that any vitamin will help it.

iving Your Car As Usual? Auto Men Urge Budgeting

By DAVID J. WILKIE
World Automotive Editor
ST. LOUIS—Have you been driving your automobile as usual? Have you been telling yourself that long your present tires wear out rubber shortage will have been red . . . that the possibility fuel scarcity is more imagithan real?
You have it might be well to time out to think seriously about these major factors in car operation. The men who actually know about these things—the car manufacturers, the tire builders and the oil refiners—are emphatic in asserting that the quickest way to force passenger vehicles out of use is to continue to drive "as usual"; they describe the rubber situation as "bad" and the possibility of fuel rationing as "distinctly real."

Perhaps no activity currently under way in the car industry affects the average motorist as importantly as the car conservation programs sponsored by the car makers, oil refiners and tire builders. With these programs aimed initially at keeping cars in top mechanical condition, the sponsors now are coupling mileage budgeting plans.

Aim Is To Keep All Running
As the experts view the situation the elimination of unnecessary car driving not only will conserve tires and double the life of the vehicle but will go far toward easing the severity of a fuel rationing program when it comes.

Car owners are not being asked to put up their automobiles for the duration; the manufacturers are trying rather to keep the nation's 29,000,000 or more passenger units in condition and available for all essential use.

In the factory-sponsored conservation plans everything from complete overhauls to fixed servicing programs is offered. It is possible, incidentally, to obtain these on deferred payments.

One company, offering a "mileage extension plan", at a specified price for one year or for 12,000 miles of car use, asserts that adherence to the contemplated servicing schedule will enable the motorist to "utilize" every mile built into his auto.

There are many factors entering into the company sponsorship of these plans and the manufacturers admit they are not entirely unselfish.

Primarily the erstwhile automobile manufacturer wants to keep the largest possible part of his dealer organization together for the post-war period. He figures that can be done chiefly by developing service work as a source of income that formerly came from new car sales. He wants also to keep his customers "sold" on his particular make of cars.

GRANITE CITY, Ill.—William F.
Kaiser, Granite City township assistant supervisor, is doing his bit to help finance the war. On the 7th of each month—the anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack—he burns a $25 defense bond. He sends the government a notice relinquishing his claim on each bond. He intends to continue the plan for the duration.

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. — Pacific

Pacific coast war time, according to members of Live Oak grange.
The grangers had to postpone their meetings one hour to 9 p. m., because the chickens will not return to roost by 8 P. W. T.

PHILADELPHIA — Traffic over the huge Delaware River bridge reached a new high in 1941. Excluding the armed forces, 15,633,687 vehicles crossed the span. Receipts totaled $3,653,611, highest in the bridge's 16-year history.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal. — The city council abolished the position of wharfinger because the amount of work did not justify continuation of such expenditure. Allen S. Lovier, who has held the position, says he hasn't docked a boat in three years.

ANTON BRIDGE AT LISBON IS GUARDED

LISBON, March 6.—The state highway department today announced that a guard has been established on the Canton bridge and will be maintained 24 hours a day for an indefinite period. The guarding of the bridge is a part of a state-wide precautionary measure, in safeguarding spans on easy routes and heavily traveled highways. The local span, which is 708 feet long and approximately 100 feet in height, is regarded as an important structure on the Lincoln highway, U. S. Route 30, over which army equipment is moved.

Immediate induction would cause undue hardship to the registrant he will be given an immediate furlough to adjust his civilian affairs. Although the final physical examination by the army will continue to be the most thorough one given to registrants, the local boards will continue to give "screening" examination, rejecting the obviously physically unfit men.

Under the new procedure registrants will have the same rights of appeal and right of personal appearance before their local boards as they do at present.

Instead of receiving the notice to report for physical examination by the armed forces as they do now, the registrants will be given a notice of induction.

CAMOUFLAGE NEXT MOTOR PLANT JOB

Industry To Turn Talents
To Devices To Fool
Enemy

DETROIT—It may be possible to fool an enemy bomber pilot with some well-placed paint a few transplanted trees, an acre of cardboard houses and a little sleight-of-hand.

All these rolled together mean camouflage, the hocus-pocus art of creating illusions and confusing the enemy, especially to avoid or minimize damage during air attacks.

General Motors Corporation has assigned some 50 talented designers, engineers and color artists, whose peacetime job was styling sleek passenger cars to conduct research on camouflage and blackout techniques for its war plants throughout the country.

They could, if the army deemed it necessary, transform a humming war plant so that it would look like a peaceful pastoral scene or a residential community from the air; make a giant gasoline tank seem like a rosebush to a pilot seeking a vital military objective or hide a railroad siding beneath some artificial shrubbery.

Dispersal Illusion Created

Expensive? Yes, very, according to Robert E. Bingham and Howard E. O'Leary of GM's Camouflage and War Service section.

"All of the research," they said, "springs from a two-fold objective. First, to confuse the enemy wherever and however we can; second, to minimize the damage."

They have developed three possible plans for camouflaging war plants, last of which is the most thorough and most expensive. They are:

1—Painting of trees and shrubbery on the roof of a plant and planting of trees on the grounds.

2—Creation of "dispersal" illusion by the use of flat irregular shapes of waterproof board on the factory roof to give impression of two buildings instead of one. A false roadway also could be shown on the board.

Black Paper Valuable

3—An "all-out" confusion arrangement, including artificial planting and erection of cardboard penthouses on rooftop and diversion of smoke to nearby dummy manufacturing plants. This also would include transplanting of trees and shrubbery and dummy roadways.

GM's researchers also are studying methods for bomb and splinter-proofing of windows with glass substitutes and reinforcements which have proved their ability to withstand pressure of explosion.

Furthermore, they explained, use of heavy black paper in windows would reduce sharply the possibility of injury to workmen in event of terrific bombardment.

Information obtained by the Camouflage and War Service Section on camouflage, bomb-proofing and complete setup for war plant blackouts soon will be compiled in a manual for all GM plants. This will be kept up to date by issuance of bulletins as warranted by the research.

EXCESSIVE PROFIT DRIVE IS PLANNED

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Congressional action to recapture any excessive profits made by companies sharing in the $56,000,000,000 war production program was advocated today by Chairman Byrd (D-Va.) of the joint committee on non-essential expenditures.
Byrd told reporters preliminary information led him to believe that the potential profits in the current program were so high that the government ought to be able to recover up to $3,000,000,000 and still leave participating firms with a fair return on their investment.
He said he would ask the committee to consider a proposal to impose recapture provisions on the earnings of these companies. This should be calculated, he said, to permit the corporations to retain as profits only a reasonable percentage on their invested capital as interpreted by the treasury for tax purposes.
Byrd cited a necessity for safeguards beyond those provided in proposed increases in the excess profit rates in the new revenue program.
"With all of these contracts being negotiated now, instead of being let on competitive bids," he said, "it has become doubly important to see that no unconscionable profits are made by the companies manufacturing war goods."

PASADENA, Cal.—This city is one of the greatest gardening and flower growing cities in the United States and its citizens have just been notified that tires for wheelbarrows come under the same restrictions as auto tires.
PORTLAND, Ore.—The Lee brothers—San Yan and Frank See—wanted a crack at the Japs, and Uncle Sam has given them the chance in his navy. The brothers who came to the United States in 1939, will serve as mess attendants.

RACINE, Wis.—Since Forrest H. Markham followed the footsteps of his sons, Stanley, 24, and Darrell, 17, and enlisted in the navy, Mrs. Markham admits she gets restless just knitting. "I'm ready to join up myself" she said.

MOONEY, 58, DIES IN SAN FRANCISCO

Death Writes Last Chapter In Labor Leader's Stormy Career

wife, Billings, Israel Weinberg, a jitney bus driver, and Edward F. Nolan, labor agitator, were arrested, all on murder charges. They were tried separately, except Nolan, who was not brought to trial.

Billings, only 22, was convicted but because of his youth was sentenced to life imprisonment. Mooney was convicted and sentenced to death. His wife and Weinberg were acquitted.

Labor throughout the world took up Mooney's cry. Demonstrations bordered on riots in Russia, already in the throes of revolution.

President Wilson appealed for clemency in the interest of international affairs. Finally, when the U. S. Supreme Court refused to act, Governor W. O. Stephens commuted the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Mooney then began a fight for complete exoneration and freedom. Court records became so voluminous their weight was counted in tons.

Meantime Mooney found time, while peeling potatoes in the prison, to keep alive the fires of his fight for freedom as a martyr of labor. In 1937 he entered the political campaign from behind the walls, urging with letters and pamphlets the election of Olson as governor.

Olson's election was a spiritual victory, the only one in Mooney's long fight which paid a definite reward—vindication and freedom.

Mrs. McCave Bride Of Gilbert DeJane

The bride was dressed in a blue military suit with old rose accessories, and wore a corsage of white carnations and roses. The bridesmaid wore a tan suit and wore a corsage of white carnations. They will make their home in Washingtonville.

T. C. Riddle was injured in a fall Monday evening. Two bones in his ankle were fractured.

The Elizabeth class party of Trinity Lutheran church will hold its monthly party on Thursday evening, March 12, instead of Wednesday evening, March 11.

The Fortnightly club members were guests on Wednesday evening in the home of Mrs. H. L. McIntosh.

Other guests were Mrs. Walter Tourdot of Leetonia and Miss Eunice Stouffer. Honors for cards were won by Miss Myrtle Baker and Mrs. Sadie Stouffer. The consolation gift went to Mrs. Helen B. Weikart. The club will be entertained in two weeks in the home of Mrs. H. L. McNeal.

Efficiency Ideas Bring Rewards To Plant Crews

EDITOR'S NOTE: The government is preparing a drive to increase production by stimulating workers. America's Production Soldiers, through a system of competition and recognition. Don Whitehead, in his second of two stories on how a similar drive has worked out in one company, tells how it brought suggestions saving time, labor and money.

BY DON WHITEHEAD
CAMDEN, N. J., March 6.—(Wide World)—Eleanor Macrina probably would giggle with embarrassment if anyone told her she qualifies as a heroine in America's battle of production to beat the Axis powers. But the pert young brunette fits the descriptions of those "production soldiers" who President Roosevelt says must be given recognition for outstanding accomplishment in helping increase the output of military equipment.

One day while working in the RCA Manufacturing Co.'s plant, on radio receivers to be used in tanks, Eleanor had the idea that a lot of time, money and material might be saved by a few simple changes in her routine.

She suggested the idea to a committee set up for that purpose—and it was adopted.

That's the spirit of labor-management cooperation which the government is planning to harness in a nation-wide campaign to step up war production throughout recognition of meritorious work by individuals and plants engaged in military contracts.

Woman Sets Example
As a result of Eleanor's idea, America's armed forces are getting better tank receiving sets and getting them faster.

This young woman's accomplishment is an example of what already is being done in the RCA Manufacturing Co.'s five plants (Camden, Harrison, N. J., Bloomington, Ind., Indianapolis, Ind., and Hollywood, Calif.) in a cooperative drive to stimulate war production by new ideas and time-saving short cuts.

The Navy "E" flag, awarded to manufacturing plants for outstanding work on war contracts, flies over the RCA Camden plant largely because of Eleanor Macrina and her fellow workers, many of whom made suggestions just as important.

Peter Kuss is another who hit the big jackpot. He was spraying transformers, to keep soldering surfaces clean, it was customary to wind tape around the points to be soldered and after the spraying, to cut off the tape and discard it.

Kuss suggested that rubber tips

Jap Island Raided by Planes

Taking the offensive again, United Nations planes (nationality not specified) have made an attack on the Japanese island of Minami-tori Shima, also known as Marcus Island, in the Bonin group, 1,250 miles southeast of Tokyo. Japanese imperial headquarters in Tokyo claimed that "30 enemy aircraft" attacked the island.

"HUTCH" OF THE R.A.F. by PETER MUIR

SYNOPSIS
David Hutchinson, American navigator with the Royal Air Force, makes a forced landing in a golf course in Kent, England, where he meets lovely Wendy Olsen, on leave from the Ambulance Corps. Just as David finishes repairing his plane, he hears that Messerschmitts are chasing him. He flies off to join in the fight. Wendy stands rooted to the spot, watching the battle till the planes disappear in the clouds. Then she sends her way to "The Downs," ancestral home of her father, Lord Harrowsdale. War changed the luxurious mode of life at "The Downs" for all were now in the front line. Wendy's father, Lord Harrowsdale, was an airman, while Lady Harrowsdale directed the local hospital. Wendy can't get the American out of her mind; even now he might be lying on the ground somewhere wounded or dead. Arriving home she finds her brother, Philip, there on leave impatiently waiting for an "opening" in the ranks. The telephone rings—orders for Philip to join the squadron immediately. One of the messengers had been shot down near "The Downs" by David? Wendy wonders.

CHAPTER FOUR
Philip found his mother in the garden on the far side of the house from the golf links. In her moments, and they were becoming rarer and rarer as work sick and wounded officers at the hospital absorbed more and more of her time, Lady Harrowsdale was fond of what Wendy had dubbed the three P's—pruning, planting, and putting. At the moment her gloved hands were over England's good earth. She was putting in her peonies, and a basket of bulbs stood nearby. Her left hand she held a trowel. "Hello, Mater," Philip called. She turned towards her son and smiled. "Hello, and how is the boy?" She spotted his wings. "Congratulations! When did you get them, and how?" Philip enveloped the slight, gray-haired woman in his bear-like embrace, and kissed her. "A few minutes ago—sort of on leave, you know. But I've got to go right now. C. O. just telephoned. I'm joining the squadron."

The stiffening of the mother's face, the crisping of her hands, the meaning of these words came to her. They were imperceptible; they were thin and slightly sad but still bearing traces of duty, remained calm and without expression to show that inwardly she was suffering. "I am proud," she said, and there was no catch in her voice to betray her emotion. "Proud that I will now serve England as your father and generations of ancestors have served before you." This all in the serious vein. Like all the Anglo-Saxons, she had a sense of emotional scenes. "Come! Look at my dahlias. They're better than ever this year. I'm sure I shall win the club prize." They were several varieties. Then she looked at his watch and said, "I'm afraid I'll have to be running." "I know, dear. Wendy will drive me to the station, I suppose. Good-bye." They kissed and he hurried to look for his father. Lady Harrowsdale went back to her roses and continued to plant. The old gentleman was in the library, watching a groom rub down his favorite bay hunter, Pucka, on which he had just returned from a hard ride across the downs. He was a handsome man, much taller than Philip, with iron hair and a well-cared-for face. His bearing was military. He looked particularly well in his riding clothes. Despite his military occupations, he found time for his daily rides across country, feeling that it was necessary for him to keep up the old customs of pastimes as much as possible. "I'd he would say to the country people, with whom he often stopped to chat. "Hitler and all his followers can't stop my morning ride."

Father and son greeted each other warmly. "Glad to see you, Philip." "Thank you, father. But I'm afraid it's only to say hello and good-bye. Orders, you know, sir, came through by phone. I'm joining the squadron at once. Chapter down not far from here, and to take his place." There was a glint of pride in the old man's eyes as he listened to his son's saying. There was doubt about it, the boy had the look of a soldier. Lord Harrowsdale thought but did not express this opinion aloud. He had fought in the World War from 1914 until he was so badly wounded in 1918, and now he would fight on through his offspring and rarely had a generation of the family failed to offer their blood for King and Country. His father had been twice wounded in the World War, and his grandfather had died as a young officer in the Boer War, and so back into history. Now the boy was going off to fight in the gallant cause of liberty against the unspeakable Adolf Hitler.

Give them my compliments," the father said, referring to the messengers. "My very best compliments, punctuated with a few words of machine-gun bullets. Good luck and God bless you!" "Thank you, father."

Philip drove the two-seater to the front of the house to where Wendy was still chopping at golf balls. She saw him coming and walked over to the car. "I'll go to the station with you and bring the car back."

"Good girl!" She jumped in behind him and they started off. "Philip," she said, before they had gone very far. "There was something in his sister's voice, a certainty to which he was not accustomed, that made him cast a side-long glance at her lovely, serious face.

"Will you do something for me?" "Anything that is humanly possible, my sweet."

"Will you try to get a telephone call through to me as soon as you know who was killed this morning?"

"Can't mention names over the phone, you know. Strictly against orders."

"You won't have to, Phil. I want to know if it was David Hutchinson. Just say 'it was' or 'it wasn't.' You can, can't you?"

"That's sort of getting around it, you know, old girl. But for you—yes."

Wendy put her hand on his knee and squeezed it, conveying her gratefulness without speaking. "I'll be waiting," she said in a low voice.

The train was pulling in when Wendy and Philip arrived. The station platform was very animated. Several groups of soldiers, surrounded by friends and families, standing about with full kits, waiting to return to their regiments. Most of the people chatted gaily and made jokes. England was certainly not down-hearted.

with a cut foot was now well and could be returned to The Downs kennels.

Dusk was falling on the countryside when the bell sounded a third time. It was Philip. The communication was bad and Wendy strained with all her sense of hearing to catch the words.

"Hello, Wendy. That you?" "Yes."

"Can you hear?" "Not very well, but go ahead."

"It was—"

There was a buzzing noise in the instrument, followed by complete silence. The communication was cut. For a long moment Wendy stared blankly at the instrument, as if expecting to see the answer written there. Then she realized what had happened and hung up, knowing that her brother could not get through again if she held the thing stupidly in her hand.

Again the phone rang, and this time she was trembling when she reached for it. Her mouth was dry from nervous emotion and her hot temples throbbed.

"Hello, Wendy." The voice came through more distinctly this time. "Can you hear now?"

"Better."

"Well, old dear, it wasn't. Cheerio!"

The instrument slid to the floor. Wendy dropped her head in her upturned palms, and wept frankly, unashamed.

SALINAS, Cal. — James Corda, grocerman, "made" the selective service registration by one hour.

Barbed wire, by the mile, is strung along the coastline at Darwin, Australia, which already has been bombed by Japanese planes in what is believed to be a preliminary for an invasion of the Australian continent itself. Australian newspapers have begun a campaign for an American, preferably General Douglas MacArthur, to be appointed commander-in-chief of United Nations forces in southwest Pacific.

Corda was born one hour after midnight on Feb. 17, 1897, to a private in the first World war. The word Eskimos means "the people who eat raw flesh."

War Production Board LIMITS FUTURE PHONE INSTALLATIONS

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY, the War Production Board has ordered the telephone industry to limit future installations of certain types of telephone equipment. These curtailments will save annually approximately 35,500 tons of lead, 29,000 tons of iron and steel, 29,500 tons of copper, 650 tons of zinc, 540 tons of crude rubber and large quantities of other scarce materials vitally needed in the war efforts.

HOW THE ORDER AFFECTS PHONE USERS

- 1 EXTENSION TELEPHONES will not be installed in residences unless required for public health, welfare or security.
- 2 TELEPHONES will not be changed from wall and desk types to handsets, except to replace worn-out instruments.
- 3 SWITCHBOARDS in business establishments will not be converted from a manual to a dial basis.
- 4 PARTY LINES will be installed where sharing of lines will conserve scarce and critical materials.
- 5 TELEPHONE EXCHANGES will not be converted from manual to dial operation, except where the work is under way. Only additions or replacements necessary to the maintenance or protection of the service will be made. Existing equipment and facilities will be conserved or reused wherever possible.

The Ohio Bell Telephone Company, of course, will comply with the order and do its utmost to achieve the desired results in saving materials.

The overall service to the nation still will be more adequate than anywhere else in the world.

We will endeavor to administer the order as equitably as possible and with the least inconvenience to the public. All types of instruments and services will not be available as heretofore. The public, however, always has cooperated in getting the best possible service out of the available facilities and a continuation of this cooperation will be helpful in these times.

CHAPIN'S MILLINERY

Carroll Club Five Trims Saxons, 33-29, In Class A Battle

CARL FIELD PACES WINNERS; CADETS COP 16TH IN ROW

Class B Leaders Unbeaten For Years, Colian Star In 59-46 Triumph

Paced by Carl Field, who hit the hoop for nine points, the Carroll club avenged a previous loss at the hands of the Saxons by defeating them last night on the Memorial building court, 33-29. It was a battle all the way as the Saxons strove to score another win over the Carrolls. Bolstered by Chuck Switzer, who tallied eight points to lead the barrage, they nearly turned the trick.

The Carrolls were without the services of Buck Ritchie who played at Struthers with the Celtics last night but managed to pull through as they turned on their celebrated passing attack and slipped a few buckets through the nets to pull away. Field was followed in the box score by Jim Kleon and Kovash who tallied seven points apiece. Bob Minamyer and Mike Otna trailed with six and four respectively. Switzer paced the Saxons with eight while Mike and Wally Linder and Walt Miller parted the cords for six points each.

The Cadets, class of the B loop, won their 16th victory in as many as last night as they defeated a "hot" but undermanned Trojan outfit, 59-46. The undefeated loop leader, led by lanky Lou Colian, ran up a tremendous lead in the first half and coasted in to keep their victory string intact. The Trojans tried hard in the last quarter to cut the Cadets' lead but they were playing four men against five and the task was much too tough. Colian flipped in 21 points to lead the league leaders and was assisted ably by Bob "Mouse" McGhee and Warren Tullis who tallied 10 apiece. Johnny Drakulich and "Pinky" King both were hot for the losers and scored 20 and 17 points respectively.

In the last game on the slate, the West Side A. C. drubbed the Presbys by a 35-23 count as Wayne Hahn and Bill Ritchie combined to toss in 22 points. Danny Kleon, Johnny Hart and "Kooty" Kozar paced the losers' attack with six points each.

YANKS FACE CARDS TODAY IN INITIAL EXHIBITION GAME

Holdout of Six Regulars Forces McCarthy To Juggle Lineup

(By Associated Press)
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 6.—The appearance of the New York Yankees became more fantastic than ever today as the lined up for their opening exhibition game with the St. Louis Cardinals. The determined holdout of six regulars already had established that the New York team entering the grapefruit grind would have to be a collection of misfits. But nobody could foresee the last minute changes Manager Joe McCarthy decided upon.

Ever since camp opened he has been grooming Gerry Priddy for third base and has been playing rookie first baseman, Ed Lacy, at second. However, when he announced his batting order for the inaugural at Waterfront park, he put Priddy at second and Lacy on third—admittedly because he figured the 6-foot, 5-inch freshman could do less harm at the hot corner than at second.

The result of this swap gave the Yanks this novel batting order: Rizzuto ss; Hassett lb; Henrich cf; Chartak rf; Selkirk if; Priddy 2b; Levy 3b; Rosar, Sears, Robinson c; Gandini, Borowy, Queen p.

McCarthy had been hoping that the veteran Frank Crosetti would show up, but even though the little fellow was an early signer he is not yet in camp.

In explaining the tricky shift which moved a first baseman substituting at second to third, McCarthy waved away queries about whether the big recruit from Kansas City ever had played third.

"He's never played second, either," the manager commented wryly. Priddy came to the Yanks last spring as a second sacker and probably will return to third after Joe (flash) Gordon comes to terms.

Marse Joe did not even try to gloss over the mysteries of having Mike Chartak, a .293 hitter for Kansas City, bat in the hallowed cleanup slot of Joe DiMaggio, or rightfielder, while Selkirk occupies the leftfield berth reserved for holdout Charley Keller.

Men Work, Sleep In Shifts In Coast Shipbuilding Town

Vallejo. Near Mare Island. Faces Problems In Absorbing 30,000 Workers and Their Families

By SIGRID ARNE.
VALLEJO, Calif., March 6—(Wide World.)—The alarm clock buzzes three shifts of men out of bed every 24 hours in Vallejo.

The clockwork carry a day-round freight of sheets and towels. The movies stay open all night. The schools are running two shifts. Beds are stacked in the locked auditoriums of a church and a school; just in case an epidemic hits.

At the edge of town, in San Francisco bay, lies Mare Island. And on Mare Island probably lies the biggest naval shipbuilding yards in the world. It's growing rapidly.

There are 30,000 machinists, welders, coppermiths, engineers swarming over Mare Island turning out submarines and auxiliary navy ships.

Adds 30,000 Workers
Two years ago Vallejo was a drowsy town of 20,000. And on Mare Island worked 3,000 men. Then navy bill piled on navy bill, and the little town had to absorb 30,000 workers—to say nothing of the workers' families.

Rents on some houses jumped from $45 to $125 a month. Tired shipbuilders had to drive 50 miles just for a chance to sleep and wash up. Then drive back the 50 miles to go to work.

Plenty are still doing that. But the federal government stepped in to build whole new villages on the nearby hills. Workers arrived with trailers to live in. Dormitories were thrown up for the single men.

The streets of Vallejo tell the story—if you can read between the lines—of what's going on across the creek on the island.

Army cars swarm through traffic and fill whole fields. There's plenty of coast artillery and anti-aircraft in and around the city to see that the work of Mare Island goes on.

Men in blue—wearing "H. M. S." bds—tell the town every time a British ship puts in. Until recently the H. M. S. men turned their cap bands to conceal the names of their ships. Now they don't.

American sailors swarm for the busses to San Francisco and Sacramento when they get shore leave. Some of them limp about the streets, bandaged here and there. Lads from Pearl harbor who are just beginning to leave their hospital beds.

And they all have to sleep somewhere.

5,258 New Homes Built
The hills around the city are studded with 5,258 new homes for defense workers: neat, boxlike structures which string up the hills like steps. Carpenters are beginning another thousand.

Trailers huddle—1,250 of them—on 29 lots near the town. Each trailer is allotted a small space of land. The telephone company is trying to place outdoor telephone booths nearby. The government has built sanitary buildings in each settlement.

Long wooden dormitories house 1,483 single men. And others are starting for 1,014 more.

Vallejo's landladies—and that's about every woman with a hall or parlor in which to put another bed—are squeezing workers in so tightly that they advertise like this:

"Twin bed in double room for man on 4 to 12 shift."

The shift schedule brings the trouble. The men must sleep to keep fit for the steady grind in the shipyards. But the crowding is so great that one set of men will just be dropping off to sleep when the alarm rings to wake another set.

One set comes off duty with a need to relax a little—and where does a man relax in a town which, for instance, an seat only 6,000 people in its movies while it employs 30,000 people?

Or where there is no baseball field far enough away from windows where the shades are pulled down so the night shift can sleep?

Killed Three

Police at Lapeer, Mich., hold Mrs. Julia Kulnich, 26, for the slayings of her husband, Peter, 30; her daughter, Helen, 7, and her son, Nicholas, 5, found shot to death in their farm home near Marlette last September after authorities claimed she confessed after first being absolved. Mrs. Kulnich, who faces life imprisonment for the deaths, broke down during a lie detector test and, authorities said, admitted killing her husband and children following a quarrel over an affair she was having with another man.

The police have found a jumping crime rate. Fist fights develop pretty quickly in Vallejo.

Youngsters Have Troubles

The youngsters of the defense families are having troubles of their own. There's such little school space that two shifts of students are run through each day. That leaves longer play hours—and no place to play except spaces between houses where, again, men are asleep.

The telephone company is expanding so rapidly that new phones go only to the men who hold key posts in the shipyards, the navy, or the army. The old residents with private phones are "requested" to go on four-party lines.

The old golf course is covered with new houses. The district attorney has taken over large parcels of land which were being held for future building by churches and school districts.

The jammed highways have been headache enough, but a recent rain caused a real tangle. More than 1,500 men were an hour late to work. One day a freight train stalled halfway across the main highway, and in ten minutes the line of cars stretched a mile away in both directions.

To add to the troubles—since thousands of the men must drive from other towns to their jobs—comes the tire rationing order. The navy stepped in at that point. It has placed an order for 300 busses. It proposes to make sure the production lines keep going—even if it has to pick up the men one by one. But it will be some months before the busses are delivered.

There's one note about Vallejo which must be mentioned:

There's a slight suggestion of satisfied swagger about the crowds that swarm the streets. Mare Island is ahead of schedule. The last big job slid down the ways four months ahead of time.

ST. LOUIS—Police are prepared for anything now. Someone stole four steel-rimmed wheels from a spring wagon parked in a vacant lot. Police Captain Elias Hoagland, who long before warned his men to guard against tire stealing, said he expected horse thefts soon.

Ready for Shipment (by Air) to the Enemy

These 500-pound demolition bombs for use by Uncle Sam's aircraft are being readied for shipment from a Philadelphia plant. Bands around the bombs facilitate handling. Both nose and neck of the bombs have been capped. Those on the plane in background are awaiting painting and recapping.
